

CHAPTER VI

CONCLUSION

A. Conclusion

This study concludes that there is a significant effort made by the U.S. and China to gain hegemony in Indonesia through the dissemination of values by various agents of influence. Indonesia had become a battleground of influence between the neoliberal U.S.-led world order and the competing Chinese values through the actions of multinational corporations and the technology the respective countries brought into Indonesia.

B. Suggestions

The author acknowledges that this study is in no way perfect nor complete. The study could be improved further by exploring other aspects of Indonesian society to determine the effect made by the Sino-American rivalry, as a more holistic approach to the topic would provide better details and understanding of the effect of the rivalry. Further studies could include surveys on a sample of Indonesian society to see the general public's view on their affiliation with either the U.S. or China.