

Factors Influencing the Purchase Decision of Pakaian Islami Modern Among University Students in Jabodetabek

By Adelia Rahma Aryadi

ABSTRACT

Along with the growth of the halal industry in the global market, the modern Islamic fashion industry has also experienced rapid development. This is evidenced by the increasing number of modern Muslim fashion brands and the intensifying competition, highlighting the importance of understanding the factors that influence purchasing decisions for modern Islamic clothing. This study aims to analyze the influence of religiosity, influencer endorsement, and user generated content (UGC) on purchasing decisions for modern Islamic clothing. The research employs a descriptive quantitative method, with primary data collected through questionnaires distributed via Google Forms. The study population consists of Muslim students in the Jabodetabek area, with samples selected using a non-probability sampling technique based on specific criteria. Data analysis was performed using SmartPLS software. The results indicate that the three variables religiosity, influencer endorsement, and UGC have a significant influence on purchasing decisions for modern Islamic clothing. This study is expected to provide both theoretical and practical contributions, particularly for players in the modern Islamic fashion industry, in designing effective marketing strategies.
